Regulated (PECO) Charges:

Customer – a basic service charge to cover the costs for meter reading and billing. Under electric deregulation, this remains a PECO energy charge.

Distribution – the cost to deliver electricity from the electric distribution facility to your home or business. Under electric deregulation, this remains a PECO energy charge.

Transition – a charge on every customer's bill designed to help PECO recover costs incurred from investments in power plants when the electric industry was fully regulated. This is a PECO energy charge.

Deregulated (Energy Cooperative) Charges:

Generation – the cost of producing your electricity.

Transmission – the cost to transport your electricity from where it is generated to a PECO distribution facility near your home or business.
